Disclaimer: These statistics are by no means scientific. I simply averaged the listed statistics for the 2011, 2012, 2013, and 2014 class years. Since the source document only profiles what the class years looked like for their first year, it doesn't account for transfers in and out. See the original Office of Admissions document for more information.

Here's what I thought was interesting:

- The percentage of Caucasians isn't listed. All the other groups, lumped together as "Student of Color," are. If there's 33.25% SOCs, there are 66.75% Caucasians and 'others.'
- Wesleyan is in New England, but largest geographic region that the student body draws from is the Mid-Atlantic.
- 10% of students reside outside the United States, but only 7.5% are International Students.
- The Office of Admission screened 10,657 applications last year to end up with 750 matriculating students. That's 7% of all applicants. That's a lot of work.
